

Kitchen cabinet Facing

Often a brush on transparent glaze can alter cabinet colors a few shades to make the kitchen cabinets more desirable. This process is not very durable and will not handle wear. Re-staining kitchen cabinets is quite popular. A lot of homes still have dated cabinet stain colors such as white wash and the muddy brown stain tones that do not look good with modern day appliances, counter tops and flooring. Kitchen cabinet stripping will remove the cabinet finish. The new cabinet stain will not always get to the selected stain color. This is because new stain colors are for new wood. Stripped wood has less absorbing capabilities resulting in a poor turn out. Some homeowners paint kitchen cabinets. Cabinet painting require using the right products as well as a procedure that gets results. Most kitchen cabinets are in good condition. The cabinet finish is the problem. Replacing the cabinets with new kitchen cabinets is an overkill approach and very costly. Cabinet refacing is another option which is refacing the kitchen cabinets with new vinyl laminate. Cabinet refacing is almost as costly as new kitchen cabinets. Cabinet refacing and new cabinets only offer standard color choices. Cabinet refinishing is the most cost effective approach to changing kitchen cabinet colors. Designer cabinet refinishing in Phoenix Arizona offers the most selection in current kitchen design trends.
